George Lekakis -AO is currently an Executive Director with the Department of Business and Innovation, looking after the new area of international student experience. Prior to this appointment he was the longest serving Chairperson of the Victorian Multicultural Commission.

According to George, working directly with people is an inspiring and challenging process particularly if you seek to meet needs and bring about change.

Tasneem Chopra is the chair person of Australian Muslim Womens Centre for Human Rights. Her history at the Council coupled with a background in psychology and experience in community development has seen her venture out independently as a cross-cultural consultant with a particular interest in promoting issues of social justice.

Tasneem has worked tirelessly to promote the profile of the Council and the challenges that Muslim women face in Australia. As a mother of three young children, she juggles her Council, professional and parenting commitments and rises to the challenge with tremendous skill and enthusiasm.

Nyadol Nyuon arrived in Australia in 2005 after being in a refugee camp for some time. Currently she is a law student at the University of Melbourne and has completed an Arts degree (Victoria University). Since arriving in Australia, she has worked to increase awareness of issues affecting the lives of African Australian youth. Some of the organizations she has worked with include, Victoria Equal Opportunity and Human Rights Commission, Oxfam Australian, The African Think Tank, The Centre for African- Australian Women Issues and others. She has also presented at conferences and forums on issues impacting the settlement of African- Youth in Victoria and Australia in general. She is a published author of several papers and articles.
